It is compatible with most digital cameras and devices, has more limited editing options, and is generally easier to use. 2. Photoshop's Price Photoshop CC is available to purchase for $10 per month on subscription, or $29.99 per month to buy for desktop use only. Photoshop Elements 16 is the latest version available. Q: How to apply a conditional based on the value of a Javascript Object? I have a piece of Javascript code that look something like this: var o = { name: "Mark", surname: "Ogren" } if (o.surname === null) { //do something } I want to create a nested loop that will do the same function as above. It would be something like this: for (var key in o) { for (var val in o[key]) { if (o[key] === null) { //do something } } } How do I do that? I have tried some of the solutions I've found by reading this and this but they don't seem to work. A: You may iterate an object's properties and evaluate their value, like this: var o = { name: "Mark", surname: "Ogren" } for(var key in o){ if(o[key] === null) { console.log(`The name of ${key} is:${o[key]}`) } } More info: Iterating through a JavaScript object's properties. Or you may write a function that returns true when the value is Serological demonstration of immunoglobulin idiotype restriction for experimental anti-idiotype antibody formation. Anti-idiotypic antibody (anti-Id) formation in BALB/c mice immunized with rabbit anti-Carcinoembryonic Antigen (CEA) monoclonal antibody (Mab) F23.1/EP (anti-Id production assay) was assessed by serum IgG cross-reactivity on Western blots. The Fab portion of the anti-Id antibody was generally not detected, possibly because it represents approximately 1% of the IgG in the serum. However, the Fc portion of the anti-Id antibody had IgG1- and IgG2a-restricted serological characteristics by Western blot. In serum cross-reactivity of the anti-Id antibody to the immune and normal mouse livers as detected by Western blot, the heavy chain of the idiotype of the anti-Id antibody was not consistently seen; therefore, the serological demonstration of immunoglobulin idiotype restriction for the anti-Id antibody formation in BALB/c mice is limited. Furthermore, both anti-Id production in BALB/c mice and the anti-Id antibody cross-reactivity were lost after boosting with CEA in C57BL/6 mice, suggesting that anti-Id production assay is not suitable to be applied on BALB/c mice.[Left ventricular remodeling in hypertension]. The authors reviewed studies concerning the effect of hypertension on left ventricular (LV) geometry and performed some of their own studies to investigate the effect of age- and blood pressure level-dependent changes in heart size and haemodynamic characteristics on subsequent cardiac risk. Analysis of echocardiograms in five groups of patients with mild (blood pressure under or equal to 140/90 mmHg) or moderate (blood pressure between 141 and 180/91 and 100 mmHg) essential hypertension and normotensive subjects showed that moderate hypertension was characterized by concentric LV hypertrophy and reduced LV size and function. Blood pressure sensitivity of myocardial loading is a key factor in the pathogenesis of LV remodelling. Compared to healthy subjects, children with renal parenchymal hypertension showed normal LV myocardial function and geometry but endocardial fibrosis. In the elderly, left ventricular hypertrophy was apparent already with mild hypertension (blood pressure under or equal to 140/90 mmHg), whereas in patients with moderate hypertension (blood
