The Washington Post cited unidentified sources who said this was what was discussed at a White House meeting on Wednesday. Another source said Pence was interested in some kind of interview with Russian state media and that he is a "champion of that," according to the Post. Trump said in November that the U.S. media had reported that he wanted to use the meeting with Putin to discuss a potential interview with the Russian leader. He said "we'll be discussing that as we have a meeting with China, the one that's coming up." The Post said Trump was expected to face backlash from critics who have called on him to cancel the meeting scheduled for January. The president has called it too difficult to make such a meeting while also "doing my work, working the phones, making calls, dealing with a very busy schedule." if (config_group_init(&item->group, name, 3da54e8ca3
