Pro! Undelete How to Undelete? Most CD/DVD drives have the ability to test the drive by writing to a blank CD/DVD. This is done by writing a special pattern to the CD/DVD. This special pattern is called a "Burn-on" or "Mark-on" In CD/DVD writing (also called "burning") this is done by using a special program called the "Burn-on" or "Mark-on" that can be found in the CD/DVD drive's menu. This program will normally find out the title of the CD/DVD and will also ask for a filename to burn the CD/DVD. If you accidentally do write to the CD/DVD, accidentally, it will normally burn over or overwrite the data. If this happens you will be unable to get back the important data. Or you may end up with an unwriteable CD/DVD. You can use the "Delete" command to permanently remove the data from the CD/DVD drive. If you accidentally write the data to a CD/DVD while you are in the middle of a movie or other important data, you will have to "De-Prive" the CD/DVD to get it back. You can use the "Undelete" command to "Reprive" the CD/DVD so that you can get the important data back. How to undelete? Some how the data you have accidentally overwritten is not lost, but the program was unable to be recovered, deleted or reprive back. The data may still be retrievable from the hard drive. This is especially true when dealing with FAT32 partitions. When using the ATA command to undelete there is a very small chance of successful recovery, if any at all. The following steps must be followed when using the ATA command to undelete. For the "Deletion" command first insert the CD/DVD in the CD/DVD drive. Then go into "Drive Management" from "My Computer" and then "Right-click" on the CD/DVD drive letter then "Properties". Then go into "Disk Management" then "Select CD/DVD" then "Right-click" and choose "Delete". Then make sure "Delete files and folders" is checked off and then follow the instructions. After you have selected that CD/DVD

Thanks for downloading DenCopy ProQ: convert javascript-variable (array) to json I'm trying to convert a javascript variable into JSON. The following piece of code works fine but is by far not the best way to do this. What I wanna do is to convert the jsarray to a jsobject. var test = [2,3,4]; test.forEach(function(item){ console.log(item +'is ok'); }); var testJson = "{"; test.forEach(function(item){ testJson += "'" + item + "',"; }); testJson += "}"; var a=eval(testJson); so far that didn't work because it throws: console.log is not a function in the conversion to the JSON object. How can I convert a jsarray of numbers (e.g. [2,3,4]) to a json object? A: Assuming your Array is actually an Array you could do something like this: var test = [2,3,4]; var json = test.map(function(item) { return { "name": item }; }); console.log(json); A: I just wrapped the array in an object and jsonify it. function jsonify(array) { return {
