Founded in the tenth century BC by the Ligurians, and subsequently ruled by the Romans, the town in ancient times was an important military and commercial station on the ancient Roman road that run along the border between the Po Valley and Liguria. The name of the city derive from a river that flows nearby the northern part of the city, the river Sor, that crosses the city in an eastern direction. After the fall of the empire, the town was part of the Duchy of Spoleto, until it was conquered by the Emperor Frederick II. In 1258 it was part of the Visconti Republic of Milan, and in 1450 it was one of the cities that adopted the statute that allowed the citizens to participate in one of the most important events in the history of the city, the Battle of Garigliano (1650), where Giovanni Battista Castrucci, under the banner of the republic, defeated the troops of Victor Amadeus. In the mid-16th century the town was conquered by the Habsburgs and became part of the State of Milan.
