Since 2010, a new AutoCAD product called AutoCAD Architecture has been available for the Apple iPad and iOS 7-based mobile devices. About AutoCAD & AutoCAD LT AutoCAD and AutoCAD LT are not the same product. AutoCAD is a commercial desktop and mobile CAD application that allows users to create 2D drawings. The 3D capabilities of AutoCAD are built into AutoCAD LT and were introduced in 2011. AutoCAD LT is a fully-functional and integrated software for professional mechanical drafting and design, and is available as a free trial edition. AutoCAD LT is the program that is used in schools across the United States to teach students the basics of drafting and design. AutoCAD LT offers features such as 3D Modeling, Digital drafting, drafting components, Finishing, raster-to-vector conversion, block-based drawing and specifications, graphics and rendering. AutoCAD LT is installed by default on Windows 7 and Windows 8. Now, the California State University and California Community College systems are taking that equity plan to the next level with a groundbreaking $15.4 million equity-focused institution. The creation of The California State University and California Community College Equity Initiative – or Cal State Equity – is a step toward finally improving the outcomes of black and Latino students, as well as other historically underrepresented student groups, across the University of California and California State University systems. "Black and Latino students are more likely to drop out of community college than students from any other group," said Cal State Equity Associate Vice Chancellor for Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion, Joan

K. Ashworth. "We must make sure that students from these groups, and all students, have the resources and access they need to succeed in college." Cal State Equity supports community colleges in preparing students for transfer to the University of California and California State University. The campus has five sites in Sacramento, San Diego, Riverside, Bakersfield and San Bernardino, and will be developing more. Cal State's campus in San Bernardino, which was part of the new initiative, recently received $7.5 million from the UC Office of the President to support its equity efforts, including recruiting, developing programs and creating a model curriculum for courses that will better prepare students for transfer to the University of California. The campus will offer eight courses that will be taught by faculty and community members from the San Bernardino community. "Initiatives like Cal State Equity will bring promising students from underserved communities to university programs and will strengthen those programs by bringing those instructors into the community," Ashworth said. "We know that black and Latino students are often the first in their families to pursue college, and that less than 40 percent of black and Latino students graduate from community college within six years." Community colleges are often the entry point into higher education for students of color, and Cal State Equity will focus on ways to improve retention and success of students of color at all ca3bfb1094
