( ) The game seems to be only onÂ .Q: How do I change the top of a tiled image? My program generates tiled images and saves them to a text file. I am using a GDI+ Bitmap object to do this. The problem I have is that the default top (the image's canvas) is the same color as the 'ground' of the tiled image. The issue: This is the image before it is tiled: This is the image after it is tiled: I want this: I've tried setting the pixels of the tiled image to zero, then clearing them, but that only changes the colours behind it and not the original top colour (I'm guessing there is an API for this I just don't know what it is called or how it works). I'm not sure what I need to do to change the top of the image to white. This is my code for generating the new image: `Gdiplus::Bitmap Gdiplus::Bitmap::Generate(int width, int height) { Gdiplus::Bitmap bitmap; bitmap.Create(width, height);`

questions (see the useful links below). And please let us know how much you enjoyed this new issue of Cladistics. COMMENTS (0) GABRIELLA CAMPOS 3 February 2004 Dear Professor Bartlett, Thank you so much for organizing the CLADE User Meeting. I think that all my queries were answered by your session on database updates and paper guidelines! It was a real treat for me! Your subject and especially its results have already been discussed widely, e.g., in PLOS ONE, but I have a few more questions and comments on it. Would you please address some of them? So far I have observed that the proportions of your method seem to be: predominance of S, Schulenberger.CV. 3/4, combination with different proportions. 1. What is the congruence of your method with the "Time machine: Evolution along the Time axis" of Schulenberger,2005? 2.What is the result of your method (primarily the nucleotides of mtDNA)? A simplified, sparser tree than the one of Schulenberger? 3. From "It
