What's new in Detective Di: The Silk Rose Murders - Art Book:

Review by TheMadPoet17 on August 1, 2010 The Silk Rose Murders (1873 edition) is the second book in the famous series of detective novels written by Amelia B. Edwards. Though these are not mysteries as we understand the term nowadays, they are definitely a text on the subject of “private detection” and are often hailed as the first successful entry of that genre in English literature. Since the genre is so rarely mentioned, I strongly recommend anyone who wants to learn more about this important social force in Victorian London read this book. Personally, I find that I re-read this book quite often now that I am reading a lot of Victorian ladies. My post today is only about the books, however. So here is the plot of The Silk Rose Murders, which I can only lightly paraphrase because I cannot speak Persian. In reality, the story is more complex. At the beginning of the story, Margaret is in the house of her employer, Mrs. Ibbetson (who, to the surprise of the reader, is a woman!), when she makes a sudden discovery. Oh, and what a discovery it is - the murder of Margaret’s former husband, the poet Louis Papineau, has been committed. Mrs. Ibbetson rushes to the house to report the murder to the police, and finds a young man waiting in her bedroom. This man who was anxious to find out what was happening at the house, is young Louis Papineau, now grown up and the tenth son of Lord Braithwaite. The 10th son is in line to inherit his father's title, his brother will not. This is a plot of M. Forster's wonderful episode, The Almighty Judge. While literary gossiping about the hierarchy of the English peerage, they are basically thinking about the solutions of crimes - literally, solving them. Once he has found out the details of what happened, Mr. Papineau becomes a superb detective. He assumes that if his wife has not outright lied, the missing evidence would be in some books in her father's library. Mrs. Papineau asks Mr. Ibbetson to help her and takes him to her father's library. Mr. Papineau finds all these books in Ancient Persian and Arabic, so he asks Mr. Ibbetson to locate them so he can translate. Mr. Ibbetson takes him to College
