

Part II ## Working with Multimedia In this part... B is for blue skies, blooms, beautiful beaches, and backyard barbecues. Multimedia means not only pictures, but video, sound, animation, and virtual worlds, all in which people want to get their message across, or just have a good time. Multimedia marketing has become a huge part of traditional media, like newspapers and magazines, and new media, like Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube. Chapter 12, To Multimedia or Not to Multimedia, tells you whether to go into multimedia marketing or stick with traditional media. Chapter 13, To See or Not to See, warns you not to ignore the emerging field of virtual worlds and online publishing. In Chapter 14, Are You a Multimedia Genius?, you get a crash course in the new applications for manipulating, modifying, and taking photos of multimedia content.

The most popular day of the year has arrived. Apple's yearly iPhone upgrade event is here and we've already seen the iPhone Xs, iPhone Xs Plus, iPhone XR, iPhone XS Max and iPhone XC. What to expect Despite being a phone with a not-so-small screen, Apple's iPhone XS is quite powerful. It comes with a 6.1-inch LCD display with a resolution of 2436 x 1125 pixels. The resolution is noticeably higher than on the iPhone X and should be a good successor to the iPhone X. The display is protected by its ultra-smooth and one-piece glass surface with an Apple logo engraved on the back of the device. It has an edge-to-edge display design. The front has a dual-camera system with two 12-megapixel RGB sensors and an 8-megapixel monochrome sensor. A 7-megapixel True Tone sensor is also in the front. All these cameras are used for Face ID, and not for camera purposes. Face ID on the iPhone XS is the main reason why the company has not switched to a single camera sensor. The device has a special chip to perform facial recognition and hence is powered by an Apple-designed A12 Bionic, which has six cores and four high-performance GPUs. It is more powerful than the A11 chip found on the iPhone X. Like all iPhone models, it has 3GB of RAM with a 3120 mAh battery. The only difference is that the iPhone XS packs a faster and more powerful battery than the iPhone X. The iPhone XS will cost $999, and will be available in five colors: Black, White, Silver, Jet Black and Coral. The iPhone XS+ will be available with the same five colors, and will have a starting price of $1,099. One of the biggest complaints about the iPhone X last year was the lack of a headphone jack. So Apple has made sure to include one in the iPhone XS for wired headphones. Buckwheat and honey cake with poppy seed icing 30min | Bread and butter Cake 1 cup (125 g) buckwheat flour 1 cup (125 g) whole wheat flour 2 tbsp (25 g) finely ground poppy seeds 1 tsp (2 g) salt 1/4 cup (60 ml) light olive oil 1 cup (125 g) sugar 3 eggs 200 g (7 oz) yoghurt 1/2 cup (125 ml) milk 1/4 cup (60 ml) fresh orange juice Bread and Butter 1 tsp (6 g) active yeast 1 1/2 cups (375 ml) lukewarm water 1 tbsp (15 ml) honey Method To make the bread and butter: Mix the yeast with the lukewarm water. Add the honey and mix well. Let the yeast bloom for 10 minutes. Add the flour and knead for about 10 minutes with a dough hook until the dough has a smooth, silky texture. Divide the dough into four pieces and let them rest in the refrigerator for 30 minutes. When the dough has rested, bring the dough back to room temperature. Place the dough on a floured work surface and roll into a 10-inch (25 cm) circle. Fold the circle in thirds, like a letter. This is called a hakawee, or bread and butter. Place the dough in a lightly oiled bowl and cover with a clean, damp cloth. Let the dough rise until doubled in size, about 1 hour. To make the cake: Mix the sugar and salt together in a large bowl. Beat the oil, eggs, yoghurt, milk and orange juice in a bowl with an electric mixer for 3 minutes. Add the sugar, salt, and flour and beat for 1 minute. Place the risen dough inside a 10-inch (25 cm) round cake pan. Cover with a clean, damp cloth and let the dough rise until doubled in size, about 1 hour. Preheat the oven to 400°F (200°C). Bake the cake for 30 minutes, or until golden on top. Transfer to a rack to cool. To make the icing: Combine the milk and orange juice in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Combine the sugar and poppy seeds in a heatproof bowl.
