In the lead-up to FIFA 22's release, we have been revealing team-by-team previews that are now available for download on the FIFA website. On tomorrow, June 15, EA Sports will release the first of our weekly gameplay previews (Wednesday), presented by the face of the franchise, Dario Sanches.

In FIFA 22, keep an eye out for "HyperMotion Technology," which uses motion capture data to predict accurate and lifelike on-pitch moments. As a team captain, you'll be able to apply the "HyperMotion" technology to boost your players' on-pitch decision-making and physicality. Then, after an intense match, you can share your best moves with FIFA Ultimate Team in the new Community Shot Challenge mode. Plus, you can mark up the most important matches from your Career Mode to watch in Replay View. Team France News from our friends at EA Sports...

vREAL_IBO2.com One of the most talked-about FIFA teams in the lead-up to FIFA 22 has been Team France. Several French players have been drafted into the international game, and their experience of representing their country at the World Cup, along with scoring on the biggest stages, have proved key to Team France success. Now let's take a look at the approach Team France has taken to put together a squad that could challenge for FIFA glory in 2018 and beyond. Let's jump right in.

Right-Back Jean Serino is a real hero of the French team as he makes life tough for opposition attackers when the knock-downs come in from the full-back. Left-Back Florian Lejeune is another key component for a France defence that is determined to shut up shop as soon as the opposition start their attack. Wide-Man Romain Mackel (good in the air) is a key man in midfield for the international side, whilst Corentin Tolisso and Nabil Fekir are key up front. Join us after the jump for a closer look at the full squad. FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology", which uses motion capture data to create the most natural-feeling movements in your player. Our French team has real-world experience of competing at the World Cup, and there's more than just a few who could play in the #RealWorldUncut. Head Coach Didier
