Boulder City Council on Tuesday unanimously approved a short-term agreement for a new retail store at the Black Hills Regional Airport in St. George. “I’m a huge fan of St. George, I love it,” said Boulder council member Deb Gardner, who voted in support of the proposed lease agreement. “It’s a wonderful place and I’m really pleased to have this bring more retail opportunities here.” The agreement for a

5,000-square-foot store at the airport in St. George's South Towne Center would last for nine months, during which time more details about the types of products that would be sold at the store could be worked out. The St. George City Council approved a short-term agreement for the store during a Nov. 5 meeting, which City Attorney Tom Carruthers said meant the city could begin issuing the necessary paperwork to the Federal Aviation Administration. "It's just the first step of what needs to be done for a retail business to come to our airport," said
