Well, that fear of staying put at your day job is common, but it's not something you need to stress over if you're really in love with your new gig. Just remember, it's a business decision that you can make, and, like most career decisions, it's best for your long-term career goals. If you've made the leap, here's what you need to do to make things work. Stay in touch with your old contacts A job interview is just the beginning. If you're not using that time to reach out to past colleagues, clients, and the people who could help you further your career, you're gonna forget what they do, who they are, and why you should hire them. "[There's] no reason to reinvent the wheel, use up your value, and build a platform you don't need. It's weird to get the room and then realize that you don't have the muscle memory." — Nicole Gaudiano (@nicolegaudiano) July 24, 2019 Need help getting back on the network? Learn how to work a relationship from your past with our helpful career and life tips. Check out your resume Even though you're happy at your new job, you still have to get back on the radar, so you'll need to check out your resume and make any necessary changes. You won't need to lose every contact you've had throughout the years, but if you have a lot of contacts to build up, or you're afraid that your new gig

It's not listed on the download page. What about you? [link=""][color=#e3145b][/color][/link] Thanks! The installer is listed in the downloads section, on that link. If you can't find it in your downloads, it's probably a part of the bundle that you just downloaded. Try right clicking the downloads to see if you can see the installer in there? At the log-in page I can install the application but when I close the installer, it asks for my password at the next time I log in. So I cannot
