Vibrio cholerae non-O1/non-O139 isolated in Kuwait during 2000-2002: prevalence and serotype distribution. A total of 88 isolates of Vibrio cholerae O1 and O139 were isolated from patients, seafood, water, and cattles in Kuwait in 2000, 2001, and 2002. One hundred and three isolates of non-O1/non-O139 strains were also isolated and categorized into three serogroups (non-O1/non-O139, O1, and O139) on the basis of colony morphology, agglutination, and agglutination inhibition with sonicated antiserum. A total of 36.6% of the isolates were non-O1/non-O139 (32.2% of all isolates), 29.6% were O1, and 29.6% were O139. The dominant serogroup was O139, found in 35 isolates (32.7%). Of the other 72 serogroups, 16 were found only once, whereas 12 were represented by two to 10 isolates. Identification of non-O1/non-O139 strains by PCR genotyping identified the serogroup M63 as the most prevalent in Kuwait in 2000, 2001, and 2002. Serotypes Ogawa, Inaba, and O6 were the most common, accounting for 42.4, 25.6, and 20.7%, respectively. The country epidemiologic situation is discussed in relation to the current global situation of cholera./* * Fotorama * * Authors: Ariya Hidayat | phanspiro * Matt Molyneaux | matt@molyneaux.com * * Copyright: (c) 2010-2012 by Ariya Hidayat | phanspiro * (c) 2010-2012 by Matt Molyneaux | matt@molyneaux.com * * This program is free software; you can 0cc13bf012
