I want to retry queries under error conditions when a failure occurs. A: Try this SELECT @@servername OR @@servername = '.' for testing only. More Details : To be more general way then using @@SERVERNAME variable try using this SQL : declare @DBName = 'yourDB' declare @SQl ='select * from'+ @DBName + '.[dbo].[yourTable] ' select 'SELECT * FROM'+ @DBName + '.[dbo].[YourTable]' exec(@SQl) Q: How to setup a GPIO for serial port output on Raspberry Pi Zero W? I need to setup a GPIO to output what is received over the Serial port (I am unable to use UART as my device does not have one). When the Serial port is open and a command is being sent, the Pi will output the received command and the Serial port output will go dark. As I am trying to use this for a shell script to control devices remotely, the serial port will remain open and I will be continuously getting data over a long period of time, and therefore I should be able to output this data over GPIO, which will then turn off the serial port. I am using the Raspberry Pi Zero W. Thank you! A: You will need to use the third-party command line tool screen. Install using this command: sudo apt-get install screen Start it up: sudo screen From now on, it will show a blank screen when not connected to any tty (device) A: This can be achieved using screen by executing a command like the following screen /dev/ttyAMA0 115200 $ screen /dev/ttyAMA0
