Game Description and Openings:

- Necro Defense is a game based on strategy and survival tactics with various levels of difficulty. The goal of the game is to reach the end of the game without being killed by zombies or the time limit.
- In the beginning you can play with only 14 pieces of superweapons in the defense line and lives. It gets more difficult as you progress throughout the game.
- The critical part of the game consists in the layer defense where the zombies through a torrent of enemies attack, risking their lives to get to the vulnerable zombies and kill them.
- The strategic part of the game consists in the placement of the superweapons that allow you to place weaker point in the center of the current zombies line allowing you to destroy the line and pass to the next level.
- The game ends when the time runs out or all the lives are used.

(03.27.12) The Necro Defense Cory sent me an email the other day asking for song suggestions for his band's upcoming EP. I responded with this, and when he was done I played it over for my brothers and Sil'Ran as a joke but he responded within two hours and asked for permission to do a post. I had to cancel dinner with friends so I could write this. The Necro Defense The Necro Defense is a cold mission, even when you've been transformed to a realm of eternal death. One of the first things you realize once you reach the end is that it's easy to force your way through the choke points that surround Nefaria. You take two steps to the left and there's a monster. You take two steps to the right and there's a monster. You step forward into the unknown darkness, and there you are in a monster catacomb; however, no where do you see monsters. You may hear a shuffling of boot steps, but it's as mild as a heartbeat. All of the guards look like tall, thin mannequins. After a few minutes of sitting in a little hallway in Nefaria and listening to your own breathing, you stand up and do some push ups. You do your best to remain motionless, listening for the slightest noise. You can just feel them watching you, tensing their guard and ready for a fight. No cry for help breaks the silence, except for the odd hallucination. A distress beacon signals an old man, baring his teeth and screaming at no one in particular to answer him. Then, the answer comes. "Help" "Help" A loud ringing noise. The relief bellows of its speakers makes the urge to run, but it holds the fort and waits. After a month of this false security, you couldn't take it any longer and decided to challenge the guards that you see patrolling the catacombs. You can see them out of the corners of your eyes, lurking and waiting. You keep your look straight ahead and pretend to straighten up. The guards carry real weapons and seem to be training with them. You know there will be at least three. You walk in a slow walk with your head down and a slow pace. You start talking as if you are the one talking. "We mean no harm." You engage in a conversation to try
