does uiimageview set Ullmage translucent filter

continue to blur my images when i draw it to an imageview? I am creating a banner view in which i download images. On some of the images i then apply a translucent filter to them. I then draw the image to an image view and set the filter again. However, when i tap the image, the imageview zooms out, the image becomes blurry and it hurts my eyes. When i then remove the translucent filter from the image, i don't get this error, so the problem must lie with when i apply the filter to the image. Does anyone know what the problem is? Thanks in advance! A: I just had this problem and was able to solve it by using the `uiimageview.setDrawsHierarchy(_:)` function (found here) From the linked post I noted this particular line of code: `image.drawsHierarchy(in: CGRect(origin:.zero, size: image.size))` Which I replaced with this: `image.drawsHierarchy`
