stabbed a police officer at Christchurch's Botanic Garden in December was sentenced to four years and 10 months' imprisonment today. A police officer who was stabbed by a man at Christchurch's Botanic Garden has died from his injuries. Hutt Valley District Court Judge Michael Nevin sentenced the man to four years and 10 months' imprisonment after he pleaded guilty to wounding with intent. The incident occurred at the park in Whitby Court about 3.30pm on December 3, 2018.
The judge said the man had lashed out with the weapon against the officer, who police said did not know the man and was responding to a report of a male threatening another man. The man was bleeding from the top of his head when he was arrested and taken to hospital. The officer, aged in his late 30s, had initially worked at the Christchurch Police Department but had been employed by the New Zealand Police since 2011 and was on the force's organised crime section. The court heard he was laid off on December 17, 2019, after a senior police management team recommended his sacking. He is now on a leave of absence. In a victim impact statement, his partner said her life was changed forever. "I feel that I'm not the same person I used to be and I'm not as happy. I miss my partner every single day. He was a great cop. He was loved." The mother of the victim's child said the officer was a "lovely man". "Our [child's] father was a very loving, caring and funny man. I 595f342e71
