Munich draws on its rich history and cultural heritage, which makes it an ideal location for serving as a focus for the world's attention. It is the location of the moving exhibition « Game of Thrones » which was designed to inspire visitors to react the main scenes of the TV series, but also focuses on the dangers and historical tradition of the city, which served as a backdrop for several scenes of the books. At the same time, visitors can also learn about the development of the use of animation and its place in the history of Munich, which began in the 1920s and is still reflected today in the World of Illusion at the Pinakothek Rathaus. The historical area also houses some of the finest old houses in Munich. For example, the property of Schloß, which is located in the Englischer Garten, is one of the first examples of the Arts and Crafts movement. The original tile of this property dates back to the 1820s and is one of the oldest classic forms still in place. A highlight is the interior of the Museum of Fashion and Design, which celebrates more than 100 years of fashion and design. Munich is home to other museums that celebrate a specific area of interest, including the Städtische Meisterwerk Museums. Although one of Munich's attractions is its famous night life, it is worth noting that it is not customary for foreign visitors to visit the nightlife of Munich. The majority of visitors to this city are Germans, and the nightlife is typical of Munich. That's why it is best to visit the city after it is dark. There are many activities that can be done in Munich outside of the city centre, and, along with the famous beer, Bavaria is famous for its beer gardens. Mention should be made of the 798 beer gardens, the oldest still in existence, which dates back to 1603, and thus

The invention generally relates to the field of monitoring and analyzing athlete performances. In order to properly monitor and analyze athlete performances, various forms of detecting equipment have been developed over the years. Athletes use these devices to measure their performance during practice or competitions. These measuring devices typically use a pressure sensor to measure the athlete's performances. For example, Nike developed a performance monitoring system which measured the athlete's running speed and step count. These types of measuring systems have become increasingly popular. In addition, a number of systems have been developed to evaluate various aspects of an athlete's performance. For example, systems have been developed to measure the athlete's performance during a workout. The systems provide a variety of data which may be used to evaluate the athlete's performance. For example, some systems estimate energy cost. Other systems calculate sports-related statistics. In this vein, systems have been developed to record and analyze the performance of golfers. Some systems track the motion of a golfer's head and body to evaluate the position of a golfer's head and body when they swing a golf club. For example, systems have been developed which track the golfer's head, hand, and foot, and provide information regarding the trajectory of the golfer's head, hand, and foot. One problem with current methods is that they are not sufficiently precise. Some of the methods have a relatively low accuracy. The accuracy of the current methods is insufficient to ensure that an athlete is using the proper technique. Because of the uncertainty in current methods, many athletes are misusing their equipment, and have a tendency to over-stress their body. This over-stressing may lead to injuries which can cause the athlete to become injured and to fail to achieve his or her peak athletic potential. Another problem with current methods is that they do not measure an athlete's performance at the precise moment that he or she is performing a task. Current methods typically provide information regarding an athlete's performance after the athlete has completed a task. That is, current methods provide retrospective data regarding an athlete's performance. Thus, it is an object of the invention to provide a method for efficiently and accurately monitoring and analyzing an athlete's

Auckland have moved up a spot to qualify for the semi-final's of the World Cup. Auckland will join New Zealand in the final World Cup round of 16 after a dramatic day of qualifying matches at Castle Park. The Three Chiefs scored the opening goal of the second half to beat Tasman 5-2 and keep their faint hopes alive. South Africa will progress to the semi-finals while Fiji will also make their way through to the World Cup's first 16 sides. Auckland scored a late goal against Samoa to draw level with the Pacific Island side and force an extra time period. Three Chiefs carried on playing from the first kick-off and the scoreline remained 2-2 until a Samoa counter-attack allowed for a quick goal by Tukeva to give Samoa a three-goal cushion in the 47th minute. The Chiefs' second goal came three minutes later when three-goal hero Curwin Bosch was taken from the field with a serious knee injury but returned for the win. The game was back and forth in the final period with the Chiefs' goalkeepers George Naoupu and Liam Mills both keeping Samoa scoreless before the Three Chiefs' late goal. The game was marred by controversy when referee Kim McPherson did not award Auckland a penalty after George Naoupu was caught in the box by a Samoa defender and saw him shoved to the ground. Two minutes later Bosch suffered a serious injury when he was tangled with his own teammate after a collision with the Samoan defender
