Construction on the plant, operated by Indonesia's Avian Solar, is anticipated to commence in October 2019 with commercial operation around the end of 2020. The project will be a simple design with fixed tilt mount and inverters. Ridge notes that the plant is expected to produce a minimum of 25,000 MWh per annum over its life. Overseas sales contractor Seville-based Harrington Energy Group has been appointed by Avian Solar to procure the project, representing the first power purchase agreement (PPA) sale with a major local solar project operator. This confirms a policy of providing the lowest cost solar solutions to the local market, which allows utility scale solar project developers access to the market for the first time. The result will be a significant windfall for local suppliers and infrastructure projects such as roads and rail, which is likely to create a direct benefit to the local economy. "We will actively support the local supply chain by purchasing local equipment and materials for the project. We will also support local suppliers through our continual monitoring of their products to ensure they are operating at the highest standard," said Randal Harrington, managing director of Harrington Energy Group. "We have announced that Harrington Energy Group will be purchasing a $50 billion Solar 2.0 initiative with support from the APX group of companies. "As we continue to build our solar capability, we are continually looking for opportunities like this one and will continue to grow our footprint in Indonesia and other parts of the world.◆
