advertising autumn fashion, thanks to the temperature change. It's as if the seasons suddenly change over one day and suddenly I'm into sleeveless shirts and jeans. Why the sudden change? Well, it's because the school schedule has returned to normal again, and we're back in the rhythm of the daily routine. Because of the end of summer break, our last few months have been pretty hectic. School has been crammed again and we've been working really hard as usual. On top of that, we're getting back into our own routine. As far as I'm aware, all really grown up people have some sort of an unofficial fall and winter holiday that they enjoy. Children seem to enjoy this time as well because they have more free time to play and do activities, and adults seem to enjoy it as well because they can recharge. The Jewish New Year is a holiday (one of) many. Tents and other festive arrangements used to greet the Jewish New Year at the Western Wall will be razed and temporary platforms will be put in their place. Six days after the holidays, the tent arrangements go up and it starts again. It can be hard to figure out which year it is or what the date is. It could be that they just like this time of year because they enjoy the weather and clean air. Or, they could prefer the holidays to be based on a religious holiday. Then they can celebrate that right away, and not have to wait for a different calendar holiday. Another thing is that, since they seem to enjoy this time of year, they
