The above query returns three rows of PDFs as expected. Now, how can I detect with the MySQL query whether a file is a PDF if I know the file extension is xchange and not pdf. I tried this but this doesn't work. If it is a PDF, `SELECT * FROM files WHERE file_extension = 'pdf' AND name NOT REGEXP '^(.+)\.:+xchange (.+)'` What is the correct MySQL query for this task? A: The following will match a filename that has a PDF extension and does not contain the string: `name NOT REGEXP '^(.+)\.:+xchange (.+)'` If you want to match a filename that has a PDF extension, but does contain the string: `name REGEXP '^(.+)\.:+xchange (.+)'` The following will NOT match a filename that has a PDF extension, and does contain the string: `name NOT REGEXP '^(.+)\.:+xchange (.+)'` Hope this helps! Q: How can I change the background color of a particular TableViewCell in Swift? I have a tableview which loads data to the tableview from a web url and I am using a custom label in my tableview cell for the title and subtitle. The custom label I used has no background color. If I try to change the background color, the content in the cell changes. So, I want to know how can I change only the background color of the custom label and not the content in the cell. A: Use the below code for background color of your custom cell. - (UITableViewCell *)tableView:(UITableView *)tableView cellForRowAtIndexPath:(NSIndexPath *)indexPath { CustomTableViewCell *cell = [tableView dequeueReusableCellWithIdentifier:@"CustomTableViewCell"]; cell.backgroundColor = [UIColor colorWithRed:0.65 green:0.65 blue:0.65 alpha:1.0]; return cell; } Make sure you only pass the custom tableview cell that you have used in your tableview.
