Compressed Ratgeber series online (Kaspar)Gustav Kaspar Katzenjammer Kids (German: Katzenjammer Kids) is a German katzenjammer-type comic strip written and drawn by Karl Hofer. The strips first appeared in the newspaper Berliner Zeitung on July 2, 1900. While it was initially a children's newspaper, it gradually grew in popularity. - Compressed Ratgeber series online (Kaspar) Even though the strips was originally performed as parodies of other children's strips, beginning in 1938 they became more serious in their writing. By 1948 Kaspar had acquired his own house and family, and since 1953 he has also been writing books about his cats and rabbits.Katzenjammer Kids (commonly abbreviated as KJK) is a comic strip created by Karl Hofer, more than a hundred strips have been published, starting on July 2, 1900. Most newspapers including Berliner Zeitung, Die Bildzeitung and Osteria Puppy are available online, many webcomics are also based on Katzenjammer. Katzenjammer is a German word, literally meaning "cat's wee-wee," taken from the English phrase "cat's wee-wee" meaning "cat's tear". Throughout the comic, he wrote several hundred pieces of extremely disturbing and often childlike art to accompany the prose. His brand of humor appealed to a large audience and made him one of Germany's most popular cartoonists. The most famous character is Colonel Bogey, the cat, who is also its only character. The title is a parody of Katzenjammer Kids (KJK), a Danish comic strip of the 1890s. Katzenjammer Kids is based on a children's book by the same title written by Johannes Andersen and illustrated by Peter Christian Relitz, with a variety of characters parodying the most common tropes and clichés in children's literature.
