This happens through a process known as lymphocyte activation. The classical pathway involves antigen presentation on MHC (major histocompatibility complex) complexes by antigen presenting cells (APCs). There is some evidence for antigenic processing of self-antigens on the MHC complexes by APCs, but this is subject to dispute. In the absence of antigenic presentation, lymphocytes are not activated. However the alternative pathway, the Toll Like Receptor (TLR) signaling is known to activate lymphocytes, even in the absence of classical antigenic presentation. The principal interest in this project is to focus on the mechanism(s) for lymphocyte activation by TLRs. TLR activation of lymphocytes has been shown to be significant in inflammatory disease, including atherosclerosis. TLR9 is a receptor for CpG oligonucleotides and is activated by these TLR agonists. Toll-Like Receptor 9 (TLR9) mediates immune response upon activation by the bacterial unmethylated CpG ODN (TLR9). The best known and clinically most important activity of TLR9 is the initiation of a Th1 response. The Th1 cytokines IFN-gamma and IL-12 are critical for the generation of cellular cytotoxicity and hence the success of an immune response. Specifically we propose to a) examine the mechanisms by which TLR9 activation of T cells induces IFN-gamma and IL-12 b) examine the role of TLR9 in a mouse model of experimental autoimmune encephalomyelitis (EAE)Minister For Home Affairs (MHA), Peter Buning, has called for prayers for swift recovery of various people, businesses and homes affected by the recent rains and flooding in the province.
